

Have you heard about the Canal Development?

What. Here!! They'd better point into the wind like we do.

They'll totally ignore our needs to put up houses, boardwalks, flower beds, etc. all for humans who have more than they need anyway.

Wait for the tide to go out a bit more .. then we can eat

Humans sure are messy and hard to live with

Sure. I'm into a spot of grooming first anyway

It's a real worry. We leave our babes alone in Siberia to fly thousands of miles, the flight paths and this beach programmed into their genes. What will they land on? Where will they feed?

Bet the humans don't even know we're here.

Yeah, we have a great camouflage sitting on this tide line. But, this could well be our undoing. If they don't know we're here, they think the beach is a wasted space.

If the humans can't see us on the beach, they sure won't know that I'm a red capped plover and you guys are all red necked stints.